

Summer-Long 'Used Art' Treasure Hunt

- No hunting for art...and ultimately no displaying art...without registering. (You may drop out at the end of summer if you never find anything.) To register, email info@wooo.tv NOW. Space is limited, so please register before you go hunting.
- Hunt for ART YOU REALLY LIKE! That's where the hunt comes in: Take your time, hit a lot of yard sales & the like, and be discerning.
- Remember that you are hunting for the best art at the best price. While taste is subjective, and kitschy stuff is fine if it's what attracts you, the show as a gestalt is not meant to be all kitsch or a goof. Choose wisely: What you find is yours to keep!
- Absolutely NO new art purchased retail! No commissioned pieces. No original art by you, your family members, friends, etc. (Not the purpose of this show.)
- No art that's been hanging on your walls that you're tired of & now no longer want: This is NOT an art swap (nor should you submit art you got via an art swap.)
- Think FLAT art that hangs on a wall. No bulky 3D objects that are hard to display. You are responsible for making certain your art can be displayed at all & hung safely.
- No found 'art.' Please only hunt for actual art that was intended as art. (i.e., No crushed tin cans & discarded plastic bags that you simply find unintentionally 'artistic' or beautiful.) Think: paintings, drawings, pastels, watercolors, etchings, charcoals, photographs, pictures, portraits, lithographs, etc!
- Hunt as much as you like! All summer! Don't stop just because you found something. (The exhibit may or may not be ultimately limited to one piece per person.)
- Technically, there's no size restriction, and large-format is OK. But please use your best judgment, considering safe & secure hanging and sharing wall space.
- There is also no spending limit. HOWEVER, it is expected that the majority of the art in this show will be 'nickel & dime' pieces: that is, maybe, $5-$10 'used art' found at yard sales, etc. (READ: Shopping in antique stores = wrong idea.)
- Don't hunt purposely for offensive art. We reserve the right not to display.
- Prints (e.g., of famous works) are allowed, if that's what attracts you—it's subjective!
- Hunt for art anywhere! There's no 'local' restriction, so hit those yard sales anywhere you may be. (You may hunt for art in junk stores & secondhand shops.)
- For the sake of presentation, please make sure your art can be hung on a wall. Additionally, modest cleaning-up of the art you buy is also allowed. Dusting, wiping down, knocking a frame back together, gluing matting back down, etc is fine. No retouching, altering, or adding/subtracting artistic elements though.
- After summer's over, we will have an art exhibit open to the public. You are only compelled to exhibit the art you found. You don't have to offer it for sale, but you absolutely may! If you love what you found, it's always yours to keep.
- Show us something that represents your aesthetic/taste that you stand behind proudly. Hunt for what YOU appreciate & would have in your own home.

Questions? Don't overthink it;
